These days accusations against Israel are exploding all around us like cluster bombs from an Iranian missile. When those warheads fall, the immediate reaction is to protect ourselves and those we love. Unfortunately, people are wounded. Some die spiritually. So how do we protect ourselves from deception? How do we take an even stronger stand with God's uniquely chosen human family? I sit down with Reverend Peter Fast, International President and CEO of Bridges for Peace, headquartered right here in Jerusalem with branches in eight nations. For fifty years, Bridges has been building relationships with the Jewish people—feeding 24,000 needy people monthly, repairing nearly 2,000 homes, helping 120,000 Jews make aliyah. Peter addresses the flotilla theatrics, the Ben Gvir controversy, and the upcoming gay pride event at the Dead Sea. Standing with Israel doesn't mean standing with everything in Israel. Israel, like all nations, needs cleansing—and God promises to sprinkle them clean. But the forces arrayed against Israel are ultimately arrayed against God Himself. Biblical illiteracy is rampant. If you're unaware of what God is doing, you will be deceived easier. The church needs a healthy return to the Bible, read through a Hebraic lens. Go to Israel. Connect with the Jewish community. Understand their heart. And pray—it's not an option.
